PATHWAY CHURCH'S COMMITMENT TO SAFEGUARDING & GOOD PRACTICE

At Pathway Church (encompassing the ministries of the Parishes of Whittlesey St. Andrews & St. Mary's, Pondersbridge St. Thomas and Coates Holy Trinity) we want to be a part of building a society that is free from abuse. This is a central Christian issue for us because we believe in the God who loves and values every person and so we want to share in God's will for the people whom we serve, and who surround us.

Implementing good safeguarding practices, including Safe Recruitment are essential work that we must do to help make society a safer place. Spending time and resources on safeguarding is as important as any other major part of our church life and ministry.

As a church we commit to creating our own safe spaces by implementing our agreed safeguarding policy and risk assessments, by ensuring that staff and volunteers are properly trained to recognise and deal with abuse, allegations and disclosure of abuse wherever it may occur, whether in the church or in communities and by being bold in wanting to build a better church culture.

Therefore, our safeguarding training, procedures and safe recruitment are for everyone. It is not accusatory, but rather inclusive of all who want to fulfil roles and offices within our church. This umbrella approach means that we can be sure that, to the best of our ability, we have worked to make our spaces safe for the vulnerable.

It is important that on top of the administrative procedures, that all of us within the church commit to treating all people with respect, and always to follow the Safeguarding Policy as agreed by the Parochial Church Councils (trustees.)

SAFE RECRUITMENT: WHAT IS IT, AND HOW DOES PATHWAY DO IT?

Safe recruitment is the process by which we as a church introduce people into voluntary positions where there is a possibility that they meet vulnerable persons within their role. It is a standardised, comprehensive system to help make sure that anyone who's personal history might make them inappropriate candidates for voluntary work with vulnerable individuals cannot join in with that work through our church and our outreach.

The safe recruitment process includes the following steps:

- The completion of a self-declaration form
- The provision of two referees
- An appropriate DBS check for the voluntary work that the candidate will engage with
- Completing a basic awareness safeguarding course (and further courses depending on the role)
- Signing a Volunteer Agreement which sets out the role description and working practice
- For work with vulnerable persons, an interview or review meeting

Safer Recruitment is required for all roles within our church where there is potential to come into contact with children and/or vulnerable adults.

It is important that this process, with its commitment to completion of some work: forms and courses, is seen in a positive light – not as accusatory, or a personal attack. The recent history of abuse in the church proves that this work is essential.

As a church we must commit to engaging in best practice where the apparatus is made available to us. Such practices sadly do not completely eradicate abuse in our society, but they do reduce risk.
